WHAT RISING UP ANGRY THINKS ABOUT...

CAMBODIA
THE WAR CONTINUES

In the spring of 1970, Nixon attacked the country of Cambodia with bombers and ground troops. Norodom Sihanouk, head of the government, was out of the country at the time, and Lon Nol, a right-wing general backed by the U.S., took over the government.

Sihanouk set up headquarters in Peking and called for the people to resist the U.S. troops and the puppet Lon Nol. A united front was formed consisting of all the political tendencies that were opposed to the U.S. invasion. A combination of the resistance of the Cambodian people and strong protest demonstrations within the U.S. forced Nixon to withdraw the ground troops from Cambodia. The bombing, however, still continued.

The bombing of Cambodia was the only chance that Lon Nol had to keep his power. His army is thoroughly corrupt and incompetent and couldn't last a week without the U.S. air support. Even with the air support, Lon Nol's army is on the verge of total defeat.

CORRUPTION

Lon Nol pays salaries to 300,000 troops (with U.S. money), but in reality there are only 200,000 troops. When a soldier dies or deserts, the commanding officer usually doesn't report it. The dead man's pay check is then kept by the commanding officer. Foreign aid money goes almost totally into the pockets of a few high-ranking officers. Many officers make up names of men in order to pad the payroll. This corruption destroys the morale and spirit of the men and ruins any fighting ability that they might have had.

Because the officers lie about how many soldiers they have, they're always fighting at about half-strength. An army unit might get orders from Phnom Penh to go into action but they don't have enough men to carry out the job. So in addition to the morale, the corruption has a direct effect on the fighting ability of the Lon Nol army.

85-90% of the territory of Cambodia has been liberated by the People's army. Unable to take over in a ground war, the U.S. is indiscriminately bombing the people.

Besides the lack of men, most army units are lacking in guns and equipment. Even though the United States sends millions of dollars worth of military aid, the weapons never get to the troops.The officers sell the guns and pocket the money, leaving the troops with not enough guns, too few men, and no morale.

LIBERATION FORCES ARE WINNING

So, it's no wonder that the liberation forces with an army that has grown from 3,000 to 50,000 since 1970, has managed to liberate 85-90% of the territory of Cambodia. Lon Nol has no power or influence anywhere outside the immediate area of Phnom Penh.

Sihanouk, leader of the liberation forces, has had his headquarters in Peking. More than half of the staff in Peking has moved to liberated territories in Cambodia. Sihanouk himself recently toured the countryside of Cambodia from one end to the other. At one place he spoke to a group of 10,000 people. He then returned to Peking but said that he will soon move his permanent headquarters back to Cambodia.

During the last few weeks, the liberation forces have come within a few miles of the capital city of Phnom Penh. All food and supplies for the city must be airlifted in because the liberation army controls all the roads.

There is no hope for Lon Nol's corrupt fascist government. There's no way that they could ever regain their control over the people. In a last ditch attempt to keep control of Cambodia, Nixon has escalated the bombing to a level as high as any previous raids in the war. More than 39,000 tons of bombs per week are being dropped on the people of Cambodia. These bombs are being dropped at random all over the country because the liberation army controls the entire countryside. Thousands of civilians are being wounded and made refugees by these ruthless raids.

Lon Nol and his corrupt fascist regime are about to fall. Nixon will try to hold it up by bombing the people of Cambodia, but it will do no good. The Cambodian people are united and determined to run their own country.

It's our duty in the United States to try and put a stop to Nixon's murderous attacks. His mass bombings of civilian targets is another war atrocity. Nixon, the mad bomber, must be stopped.

ALL POWER TO THE PEOPLE!

THE MIDDLE EAST

One of the most troubled places in the world today is the Middle East; yet most of us understand very little about what's happening there. The situation is very complicated, but the totally biased reporting by the American news media makes understanding the Palestinian – Israeli conflict virtually impossible. While this short article can't possibly explain or examine the whole situation, we still feel that it's important to counter some of the establishment's pro-Israel propaganda. Israel, as it now exists, is a Jewish state with the Palestinian people (Arabs) being second class citizens – discriminated against politically, economically, and socially. The situation of the Palestinians in Israel is much like that of the Indians in the U.S. – they were driven off their land by Europeans and are now in an inferior position in their own country. Thousands of Palestinians were forced off their land and now live in refugee camps throughout the Mideast. In order to return to their homeland, the Palestinians have organized themselves and begun to fight against the reactionary Israeli government so a country of Jews, Christians and Moslems can live in peace and equality.

Whenever the Palestinians attack the Israelis the U.S. government and press is "outraged". However, when the Israeli government launches terrorist attacks against Palestinian refugee camps, there is no outcry. The latest Israeli terrorist escapade was on April 10 when a band of Israeli terrorists swept into Beirut, Lebanon and left 40 people dead or wounded.

The Israeli terrorists planned the raid well, with agents in Lebanon co-ordinating the raids and linking up with commandos who came ashore from Israeli boats. One group of terrorists went to a residential section of Beirut and killed three Palestinian diplomatic leaders – Yussef al Najjar, Kamal Adwan, and Kamal Nasser. Another group attacked the headquarters of the popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine. A third Israeli terrorist group attacked buildings that they claimed were Black September weapons storehouses. After these murderous raids, the commandos returned to a hero's welcome in Israel.

In Beirut, 100,000 people marched in the funeral of 3 Palestinian leaders who were murdered by Israeli terrorists.

The raid killed twenty and wounded up to forty people. The Israeli justification was that it was in retaliation for terrorist attacks. But all three Palestinian leaders killed were diplomats – not terrorists. And the Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine had publicly denounced the Black September terrorist raids. The Israeli attacks were indiscriminate and racist attacks on any and all Palestinian people and organizations. This barbaric attack is only the latest in a series criminal attacks by the "international outlaw" Israeli government.

Between 1967 and 1970 Israeli raids into Jordan left over 200 people dead and hundreds more wounded, and more than 95,000 people homeless. From January of 1970 until September 1972 Israeli attacks on Syria left about 200 dead and 500 injured. In addition, there was the Israeli attack on the Libyan passenger liner that killed more than 100 people.

These facts paint a different picture than the one painted by the U.S. government and the U.S. news media. It shows the Israeli government as the international outlaws and international terrorists.

We don't support all the terrorist actions of the Black September Movement – but the commando raids by the Palestinians in no way come close to the terrorism inflicted on the Palestinian people by the Israeli government.

The Mideast crisis is always surrounded with a lot of emotionalism and can very rarely be discussed rationally. It's not a situation where there's good guys who are always good and bad guys who are always bad. It's the real world where good and bad are all mixed together. It's also the real world where hundreds of people are being murdered by the Israeli government. People all over the world must do whatever possible to put a stop to the Israeli terrorism.

WOUNDED KNEE

FEDERAL TROOPS OPENED FIRE ON THE PEOPLE 2 KILLED, 4 WOUNDED

The struggle at Wounded Knee has esculated. The government has been unwilling to give in to any of the demands of the Oglala Sioux. Just like in Vietnam, Nixon tries to solve the problem through violence, repression, and lies.

The U.S. government and the Oglala Sioux had supposedly reached an agreement for a ceasefire. Russell Means, a representative of the people of Wounded Knee, gave himself up and went to Washington to negotiate a treaty. But when he got to Washington, the government reneged on the agreement.

The government then tightened the blockade around Wounded Knee. Food, supplies, medical supplies, and doctors are not allowed in. Many of the people at Wounded Knee have pneumonia and double pneumonia, but still, no help or aid is allowed past the roadblocks.

Something had to be done to get supplies. Late one night, some Vietnam veterans took the knowledge and skill that they learned in the army and put it to work for the people. They flew planes close to the ground so that they wouldn't be caught on the radar and they dropped supplies by parachute to the people at Wounded Knee. The federal troops shot at the planes and then chased it with a helicopter, but the planes got away.

When the Indians went to retrieve the supplies, the federal troops opened fire with all the weapons they had, including machine guns. Four people were wounded and an unarmed elderly man, Frank Clearwater, was killed.

The second death at Wounded Knee came on Friday, April 27. The U.S. troops again opened fire. The Indians asked for a ceasefire and the government fired 10,000 more rounds. Larry Lemont was killed in this attack.

The deaths at Wounded Knee follow a pattern of genocide that has existed since white people came to North America. It's a continuation of the murders and broken treaties of the past. All people must unite to bring victory to the Oglala Sioux Nation at Wounded Knee.

Larry Lemont's sister and a friend mourn him; he was murdered by federal troops at Wounded Knee on April 27.

The IMMIGRATION LAWS in this country, written about 100 years ago, were made to let (white) people from Europe in and limit immigration from other (non-white) parts of the world.

Many Mexican people who want to come to this country must do so illegally. They come here looking for work and better living conditions, but when they get here they are met with a few surprises. The jobs are lousy or non-existant, the housing is run-down, the schools are second-rate, and the general treatment is racist and hostile. In addition to the poor conditions, they face immediate deportation if they are caught by immigration officials. Many employers (like the one I work for) take advantage of this situation by paying Mexican workers less than white workers - often for the same work.

Throughout the Mexican community you can see unmarked cars snooping around. They are immigration pigs – checking papers, frisking, intimidating, and harassing people all hours of the day and night. In March of this year, over 2,700 people were picked up and deported from Chicago. Almost all of them were Mexican. They're whisked off the street, thrown in jail, forced to sign "voluntary departure" papers and pay $50 (for the ticket to the border). As soon as there are enough people to fill a crummy chartered bus, they are shipped to Chihuahua. Most don't even have a chance to let anyone know what happened to them or even to get what possessions they have to take with them. They arrive in Mexico with what they have on their backs.

This is what happened to a brother who I work with near downtown. He was picked up by immigration agents on his way to work. His crime – being Mexican and poor. He was luckily able to get word to a friend before he was thrown in jail, so we found out what happened. We then called Rising Up Angry Legal Program to see if there was anything that could be done. RUA told us that he could demand a hearing and get bailed out, and that way avoid immediate deportation. He could then apply for a visa during the few months he is out on bail.

Some friends then went down to the Federal Building to try and bail him out. The immigration officials tried their best not to let him go, but after several hours of hemming and hawing they let him out on $500 bail – he put up his paycheck and another brother from where he works put up the rest. When he got back to work that afternoon, everyone cheered and came up to congratulate him. Ten minutes later the boss had him unloading rolls of paper.

This brother may still be forced to leave the country, but at least he's safe for now. And he's only out because the people he works with were united and got together to get him out of jail, and if he's sent out of the country we will not allow him to be swept off the street and thrown away like a piece of garbage. He is a brother and must be treated with respect.

ALL POWER TO THE PEOPLE!

Immigration officers often harass people by demanding money not to turn them in, beating them up and even shooting. This demonstration last year was in response to a brother being murdered.

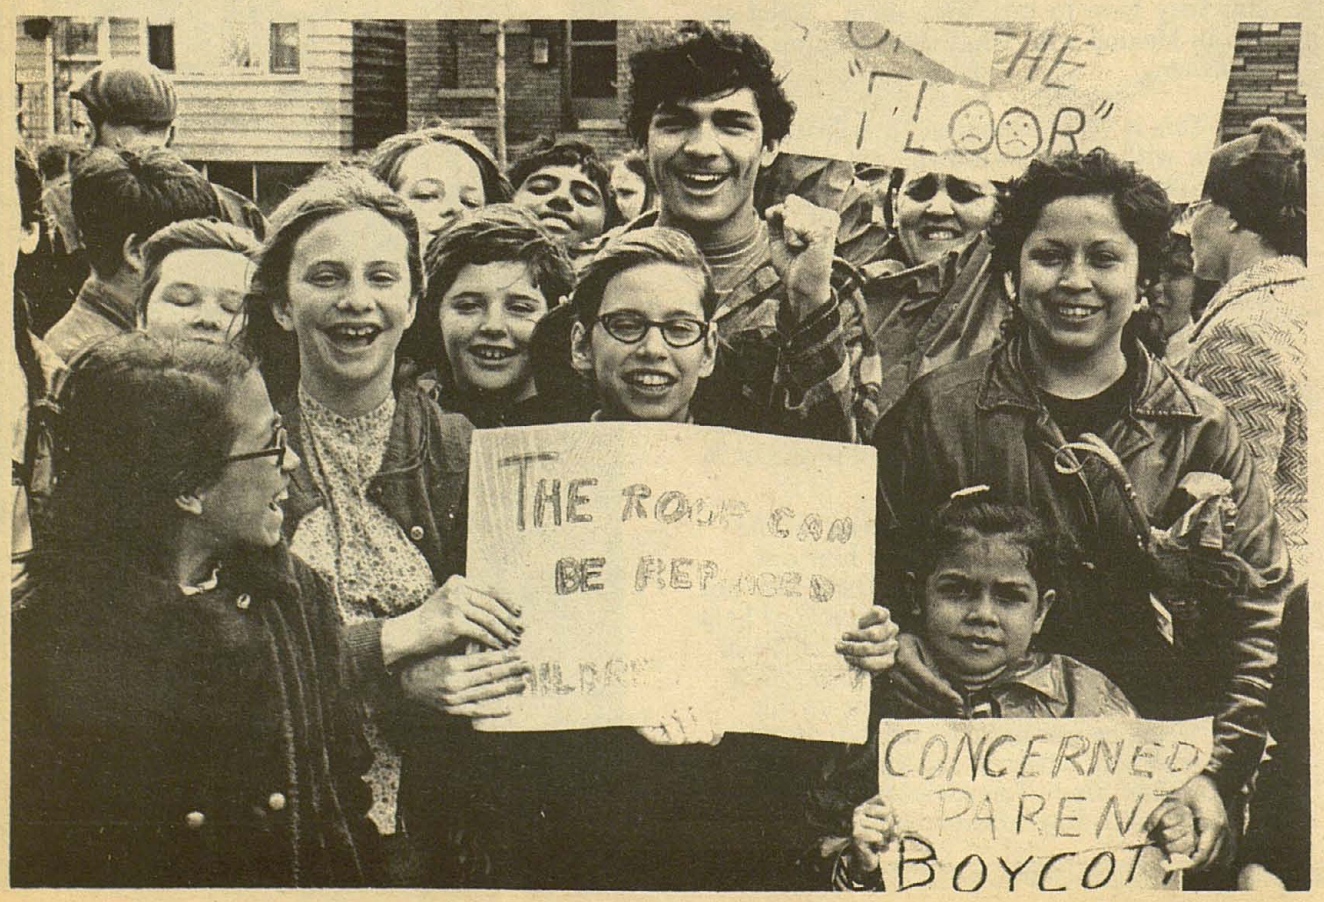
AUDUBON SCHOOL IS FALLING DOWN

Audubon is falling down
Falling down
Falling down
Audubon is falling down
Where's Doctor Redmond?

Audubon School, located on the corner of Cornelia and Hoyne, was built in 1894, making it one of the oldest schools in Chicago. There have been no major repairs in recent years. Parents have been complaining about the poor condition of the building since 1969, but the Board of Education refused to do anything about it. On Sunday evening, April 15 (the day that your taxes were due), firemen were summoned to the school when the sprinkler system was set off by the sagging roof in Room 308. While they were investigating the cause of the alarm, a section of the roof fell in, injuring one fireman, crushing four desks and spreading debris throughout the room. If this had happened only a few hours later, children in the fourth grade class that meets in 308 might have been seriously injured or even killed.

The Board immediately denied that anything was really wrong and they said that the building was structurally sound. They tried to pass the buck onto a construction company that supposedly piled over a ton of gravel on one spot of the roof. However the boycotting parents saw only one load of debris being hauled away, and this consisted mostly of old tin, tarpaper, timber, and a little gravel. The parents were naturally worried about their children going back into this dilapidated building, but the Board assured the people that the school was safe. They closed the school on Monday to haul away debris and make minor repairs, and said that the school would be open as usual on Tuesday. The Board claims to have inspected it thoroughly on Monday, but the inspectors were there only a few minutes and came out cleaner than when they went in. The parents didn't believe them and saw the need to take things into their own hands.



On Tuesday, April 17, Dr. Arlene Caruso was sent by the Board to meet with a small group of the parents inside the school. She told the parents that the building was safe and at first agreed to go up to the third floor. But instead she went to the office on the first floor, used the phone and then left the building. The people were angered by her lies and surrounded her car, chanting "This school's unsafe." Dr. Caruso never returned.

That night the parents held a meeting at the Epiphany Church of Christ where they decided to keep their children out of school until the Board could prove that it was safe. They also decided to send a delegation to the Board to present a letter from the PTA with the following four demands:

1) The entire roof is to be tested for tensile strength, weight stress, and rotten timbers.

2) Plaster is to be checked to make sure it is sound wherever there is evidence of water leak (including plaster in the stairwells from the third floor to the ground level on the east side of the building and the ceilings in Rooms 208 and 209). If plaster is still not sound, it should be taken down.

3) After the above two items have been done, we request a written statement, saying that the building is safe for children.

4) After receipt of such a written statement, we still do not want children to be allowed on the third floor or in Rooms 208 and 209 until the roof is done and the ceilings are repaired across the entire third floor and in 208 and 209.

Two representatives from the Board were present at the Church. They told the people that they were there just as observers and that they could not bring about any action on their own, but that they supported the people. The parents decided to picket during school hours until their demands were met. On Wednesday, the boycott was almost 100% effective: only 24 children were in school in the morning and about 50 in the afternoon. This is out of a total enrollment of 912.

The same day, a group of representatives went down to the Board of Education to see Dr. Redmond and present their demands. The Board was ready for them (they had been tipped off by their lackeys at the Church meeting). All the doors were locked except the delivery entrance. Only a few parents were allowed in and once inside they were escorted everywhere by the security guards; one woman was even followed to the washroom. Dr. Redmond was nowhere to be found. The people finally gave their letter to a secretary who was so uptight that she refused to identify herself.

Only through a united effort by the parents, teachers, & children of the Audubon School was the Board of Education forced to begin thorough repairs on the decaying school building.

The Board kept trying to tell people that the school was safe, but they continued to refuse to prove it as the parents were demanding. The attitude of the Board throughout this affair was one of arrogance and negligence. One representative from the Board asked a woman from the PTA to make a statement to the press that the PTA and the Board were working together. The sister refused to fall for this bit of deception. Another Board representative was heard to say that he wished that "that screaming bunch of women out there would shut up".

The teachers supported the parents and children in their demands. They filed greivances with the principal and the Board about the dangerous condition of the building.

By the end of the week, the Board finally agreed to the people's demands, and presented a plan to bus children from the third floor and room 208 to Nettlehorst school – the nearest school in the area with empty classrooms. The class from 209 was transferred to the basement. The Board promised to have the roof and walls in sound condition in three weeks – and the work is now in progress. But there are a lot of other problems with this old school: toilets that stop up, cracked walls, bad light fixtures, etc. The Board has allocated money for several years to repair Audubon, but major work was never done and it took a long time to get a few minor things repaired. Apparently the roof has been unsound for a long time. What might have happened if there had been a heavy snowfall this past winter? Only a united effort by the people to protect their children was able to force the Board to take action.

The strength of the boycott was in the unity of the people who took part in it. They were people, like Bob and Betty DeCook, who were willing to sacrifice a week's paycheck and fall behind in their bills; they were prepared to overlook needed work around their homes and to use their time and money for coffee and food for the people walking the picket lines. They have three daughters who go to Audubon. Bob, who was one of the picket line captain, said, "I should be able to trust the safety of my children in school while I am working".

Connie Long was also a picket line captain. She held the line together and kept the people's spirits high by using the experience she gained with her husband, Dave, on the picket line against Illinois Bell several years ago. After the Board finally agreed to the people's demands, Connie commented, "We shouldn't have had to go through all that rigamarole to get something done that should have been done immediately". It was the spirit and hard work of people like these who made the boycott a victory. The parents at Audubon have clearly shown that the people do have the power to change things.

There are many schools in Chicago that are badly in need of repairs. The Board has the money to repair these buildings, but it uses the funds for other things such as overpaid, useless administrators and kickbacks to politically connected builders. The Board has shown clearly what it thinks of people – to them, money is far more important than the lives of our children.

MEDICAL WORKERS WHO SERVE THE PEOPLE

FROM ST. THERESE HOSPITAL

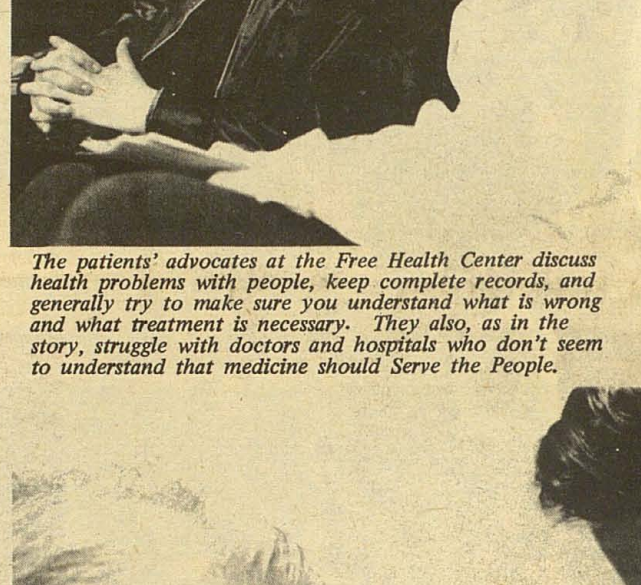
We work at St. Therese Hospital in Waukegan. Most hospitals are a drag for the people who are sick and also for the people who work in them. Hospitals are pretty depressing, they're usually very understaffed, you don't get paid too much, the patients have to pay incredible bills, and a lot of doctors don't even know their patients. If you've ever been in a hospital, you could add more to this list.

On our floor we've been doing some things to make work for us, and life for the patients a little better. The first thing is, we work together. When one of us has a heavy load we all pitch in and help out. It can get pretty rough on the floor when there's a lot of sick people and not enough help, but when we stick together we can usually pull through.

We also have a good time. We tell a lot of jokes and laugh a lot to cheer up the patients, especially the older people. We really like to try to get people out of bed, if it's possible, cause it's really a drag staring at four walls 24 hours a day. So we take people for walks, sing some serenades as we stroll up and down the halls, introduce people to each other in different rooms so they can get together, and show people the escape routes. (Joke) A lot of times we go into people's rooms in small groups and rap about things that are going on. We try to break down the loneliness you feel when you're sick in a hospital. We've all made a lot of close friends this way.

We believe in serving the people and the best way to do this is to work together.

ALL POWER TO THE PEOPLE



Nurses aides and an orderly at St. Therese Hospital work together to serve the people.

The patients' advocates at the Free Health Center discuss health problems with people, keep complete records, and generally try to make sure you understand what is wrong and what treatment is necessary. They also, as in the story, struggle with doctors and hospitals who don't seem to understand that medicine should Serve the People.

FROM THE FREE HEALTH CENTER

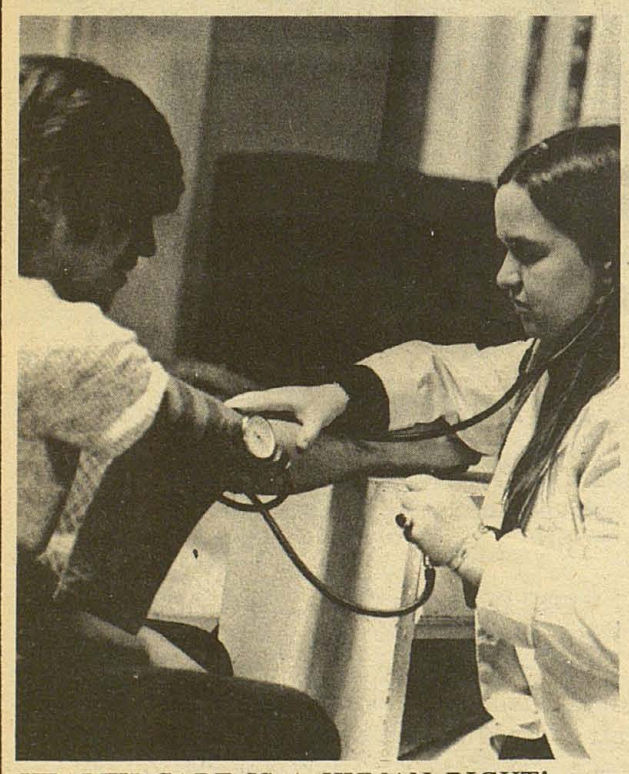
A sister named Ester was told that she had a tumor and had to have a hysterectomy. She came into the Rising Up Angry Free Clinic because she was in pain, and bleeding and didn't know what to do.

We went to Illinois Masonic Hospital and they told us the operation would cost about $1500. Ester couldn't afford that much money, so we asked them about getting a green card to help pay for the operation. After talking to various people they decided they could not help her because her husband made $50 over the maximum amount allowed for seven people to get assistance.

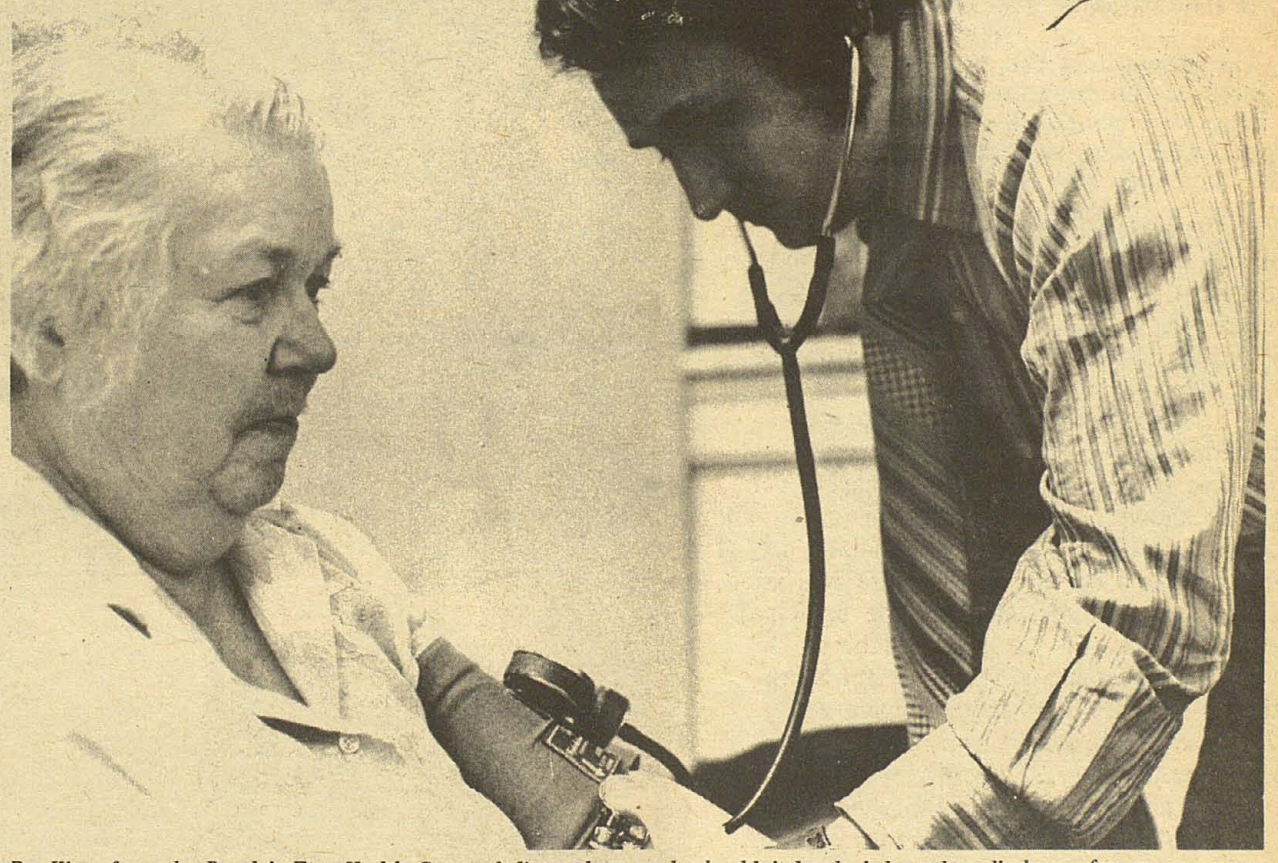
These people didn't care that the sister was in pain or losing blood and wouldn't get better until she had the operation. All they kept saying was "bring $500 in or we can't admit you." When we continued to complain, they told us to go deal with the Welfare Department ourselves and "maybe" we could get help.

But we continued to struggle with them because we know that hospitals must be responsible to the people they serve. After several days, they finally agreed to admit her and help her apply for aid.

This is a victory for the people and one step toward gaining control over our lives.



HEALTH CARE IS A HUMAN RIGHT!

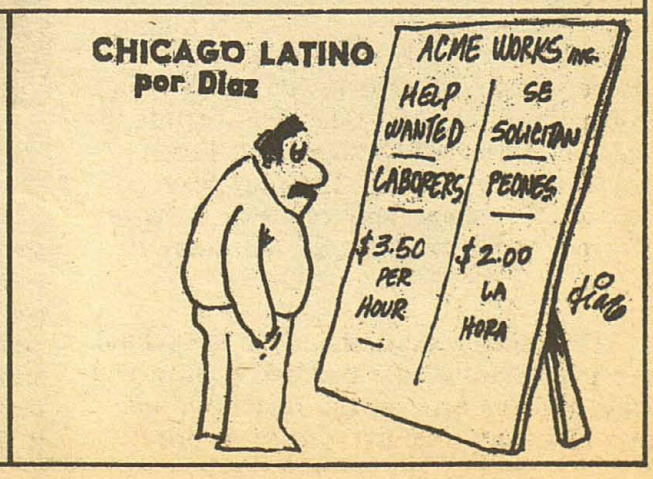


Dr. King, from the People's Free Health Center, believes that people shouldn't be denied good medical care for any reason but especially if they don't have much money - he puts his beliefs into practice at the Health Center.

JEWEL IS RACIST

The Spanish Coalition for Jobs and Operation Breadbasket has called a city wide boycott of Jewel Food Stores. Jewel Tea Company rips off millions of dollars from Latin and Black shoppers. Jewel in return discriminates in employment against Latins and Blacks. Of the 6,000 full-time employees in Jewel – only 86 are Latins. Of the 13,000 part-time employees, only 151 are Latins. Jewel received over one quarter of a million federal dollars to train workers and few were trained. Jewel has 93 stores in Chicago – 55 in Latino and Black communities.

The Coalition for Jobs and Operation Breadbasket had a meeting with Jewel Foods to demand justice in employment. They asked Jewel for an exact breakdown of the number of blacks and latins employed, what job opportunities will exist in the future, and exactly how $250,000 of government money for training programs was used. Jewel refused arrogantly to answer any of these questions.



SCHURZ HIGH SCHOOL

When asked what they liked best about Schurz, the students replied, "THE PEOPLE!"

Schurz High School is on the Northwest side of Chicago at Milwaukee and Addison. A lot of students at Schurz help out with the Rising Up Angry programs to serve the people. To give a better idea of where students at Schurz are at, we asked three questions:
"What do you like about the school?"
"What don't you like about the school?"
and "How would you change it?"

WHAT DO YOU LIKE ABOUT SCHURZ?

To the first question most everyone said, "I like the people, the people are great." Everyone was glad that the clubs have unified and stopped fighting and hassling each other. Some of the clubs that have taken this step are: Deuces, Gaylords, Jousters, Popes, C-Notes, Palmer-Jouster Partners, Cobra Stones, Spanish Lords, and Spanish Cobras.

Some people said they dig the hangouts: Triangle, Capri's, Harry's, Tropical Thirst Bar, Gossage, and Scotty's. Summing it up one sister said, "If it weren't for the beautiful brothers and sisters, this place would be hell."

WHAT DON'T YOU LIKE?

It was easy to get answers to this question. A lot of people think that compulsory study halls are a waste of time. Seniors get a special study hall with radio and television, but non-seniors think this is unfair.

The disciplinarians aren't very well-liked, especially Mr. Jursa, who was described as someone who enjoys scaring people. He shows no respect for the people and once he doesn't like you, he'll make a lot of trouble. Some of the teachers are real good, but it seems that Mr. Malone, the principal doesn't like any of the good teachers. A lot of the teachers are afraid to get close with the students and so they have very little understanding of the problems that most students face. They're not very helpful to the students who don't speak English very well and they don't take into account that some people work a job as well as go to school.

Another thing is that the general atmosphere makes it hard to learn. Even in the experimental class, Education for Metropolitan Living, they manage to turn everything into a bore. The only way some teachers know how to teach is "read ten pages and answer the 20 questions at the end."

The other complaints about the school were poor lighting, the building is dirty and dingy, and the bars on the first floor windows make you feel like you're in prison.

Students on the athletic teams get special privileges. Everyone felt that the student government has no real power to get anything done and that the kind of people in student government aren't in touch with the majority of students. Students said that the school paper is "bullshit, a joke; it doesn't allow any controversy, is censored, and just simply isn't very interesting." In addition to all this, many students complained that teachers are too quick to give out detentions and tardy slips, the clocks don't work, and guidance counselors are out of touch with reality.

HOW WOULD YOU CHANGE SCHURZ?

The first answer was jokingly (?): "Burn it down," or "blow it up." But one brother seemed to have it pretty together when he said, "No, keep the building and change what goes on inside."

There have already been some changes at Schurz. There's more unity among the students and everyone's more conscious of who oppresses them. At walkouts in the past, mostly black and latin students would walkout with very few whites joining in. The whites were afraid they'd lose something. But lose what? Now, a lot more students have realized that by getting together and demanding a better life, we have nothing to lose and everything to gain.

ALL POWER TO THE PEOPLE

Brief History of the Watergate Affair

On June 17, 1972, during Nixon's re-election campaign, 5 men were arrested for breaking into the offices of the Democratic National Committee at the Watergate Hotel. They were caught in the act with rubber gloves, listening devices, and cameras. All of the men arrested were connected with the Committee to Re-elect the President (CREEP) and had previously worked for the FBI, CIA or the White House.

Nixon and all his high-level aides immediately disavowed any connection with this spying and sabotage plot. Everyone connected with the White House said that they knew nothing about the Watergate burglary. As a matter of fact, they were insulted that the press or the public would even suspect them of having anything to do with it.

The Justice Department immediately began investigations of the incident. In addition, Nixon assigned John Dean III, his White House counsel and well-trusted aide, to handle a special investigation of the case.

After a few months of investigation, the Justice Department came up with 7 indictments. 5 of the men indicted were caught at the Watergate Hotel. The other 2 men were low-level campaign officials. The Justice Department said that only these 7 men knew anything about the burglary. The special White House investigation concluded that no one working at the White House knew anything about the burglary.

Of the 7 men who went to trial, 5 pleaded guilty so that they wouldn't have to testify and the other 2 men also refused to talk. The trial revealed very little about who was behind Watergate. Everything remained quiet and the whole fiasco almost got shoved under the rug.

But the judge didn't exactly go along with the whole game. He gave stiff sentences and put pressure on the burglars - forcing some to talk. Soon after that, the whole thing blew wide open.

What Happened Next

• James McCord had worked for the CIA for 20 years before becoming security chief for Nixon's campaign. Before the judge sentenced him in the Watergate case, he started to talk. He said that John Dean, Jeb Stuart Magruder, and John Mitchell talked about the bugging attempt last February (while Mitchell was still Attorney General).

• The wife of E. Howard Hunt, another one of the burglars, died in a mysterious plane crash at Midway Airport. $10,000 in small bills was found on her body.

• Jeb Stuart Magruder, high-ranking Nixon advisor admitted that he, Dean, and former Attorney General John Mitchell had attended meetings where the bugging was discussed.

• John Dean III, the White House counsel, confessed to prior knowledge of bugging, sabotage and spying. He also admitted to payoffs and cover-ups during the investigations. Then, in the spirit of Joe Valachi, Dean said that he wouldn't be a "scapegoat" and that he took his orders from Haldeman and Ehrlichman - Nixon's top men.

• Herbert Kalmbach, Nixon's personal lawyer, was discovered to have paid large sums of money to the defendants of the Watergate burglary in order to keep them quiet.

• John Mitchell, formerly Attorney General and campaign manager for Nixon, testified under oath in Washington that he had attended meetings in which the bugging was discussed. He also admitted to lying under oath when previously questioned about Watergate. Mitchell is Nixon's closest personal friend.

• It was then discovered that White House officials had secret stashes of campaign money that was used to finance illegal operations. $350,000 was kept in Haldeman's safe in the White House. It was this money that was used to pay off the Watergate burglars to keep them quiet.

• L. Patrick Gray, acting director of the FBI was discovered to have burned evidence.

• John Dean III was fired by Nixon.

• L. Patrick Gray resigned.

• It was discovered that E. Howard Hunt (one of the burglars), had also broken into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's (Pentagon Papers) psychiatrist.

• It was discovered that the judge in the Pentagon Papers trial had a secret meeting with President Nixon where the judge

Some of the Lies

August 29, 1972, Nixon said, "I can say categorically that his (Dean's) investigation indicates that no one in the White House staff...was ever involved in this very bizarre incident..."

March 29, 1972, Mitchell said, "I deeply resent the slanderous and false statements about me concerning the Watergate matter reported as being based on hearsay and leaked out. I have previously denied any prior knowledge of or involvement in the Watergate affairs and again reaffirm such denials."

The recent scandal concerning the Watergate burglary proves some points about how the government is run. First of all, it shows that political sabotage, bugging, and payoffs are not "bizarre incidents" – it's the normal method of operation that the government uses to keep power.

Within the last month, every one of Nixon's cronies was shown to be a ruthless gangster. It wasn't just that one or two officials turned out to be dishonest. The entire White House staff was implicated in the burglary.

And it wasn't just one burglary. In addition to theWatergate burglary, the very same White House officials planned and executed a burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. This isn't a case of burglary. It's the standard method that the government uses to control any group of people that disagree with the President.

Nixon is clearly at the head of this band of outlaws and thugs. Everyone in the White House is implicated – Nixon has never hired an honest man. But there's other people behind this thing. The people who paid for all this to be done are the really powerful ones. They are the ones who benefit from all the favors and they never risk going to jail.

The Committee to Re-elect the President (CREEP) raised millions of dollars from the big businesses that run the country and profit from Nixon police-state tactics.

• Richard Mellon Scaife (owns Gulf Oil in addition to other things) gave $1 million.

• The Phipps family, who owns Texaco, gave $55,000.

• Francis Cappeart, who is one of the super rich farm owners that profit from high food prices, contributed $174,000.

• John Paul Getty (Getty Oil) contributed $97,000.

• Arthur Watson (IBM) gave $303,000.

• Howard Hughes (Hughes Tool Co.) $100,000.

This is just a small sample of who's behind Nixon. Milk producers paid large sums to get a price hike approved and every other major industry in the country gets favors from Nixon. Some of these favors are legal and some aren't.

Part of the problem is that Nixon and his cronies are dishonest, ruthless, greedy, power-hungry maniacs. But they can't be looked at as separate from the system that created them. They made it to power because they played according to the system.

Nixon didn't invent corruption and lying, but he became President because he's real good at it. The bigger the criminal, the more crimes they have to cover up. So he talks about "peace with honor" when he bombs innocent people. He talks about "law and order" when he is burglarizing hotels. He talks about helping consumers as he approves price hikes for the rich and freezes the workers' wages. These things go hand in hand.

So the real source of the problem is that the capitalist system breeds corruption. Power is in the hands of the super-rich and they use that power to gain more power and more wealth. The government is their tool to keep the people from doing something about the big businesses that are ripping off everyone.

But this doesn't mean that Nixon is not the real enemy. He's the slimy scum that's carrying out all these crimes. He talks about honor – but Nixon has no honor and he breaks his own laws.

The government is run by crooks, liars, and thieves – the people will put them where they belong.

Letter From A Sister At Stewart Warner

Dear Rising Up Angry,

A couple of months ago we wrote a letter to Angry about people fighting the company at Stewart Warner. Well, that's still going on – and even getting stronger. Our paper is still coming out – but what's even better is that people are taking action all over the plant.

In one department, the workers complained because the windows were painted over and covered with soot. There was no light or ventilation. The company said they would have to get a contract to have the windows opened, but the people stuck with their demands and the maintenance crew opened the windows right away.

In another area, a woman was doing a man's job for "woman's pay" (less). She protested, wrote about it in our newspaper, and called in the union. Now she has the job that corresponds with her pay grade.

I was working at Stewarts for five months. I made my rate every night, came in regularly and on time. I never had any trouble until I spoke out about some unfair and unsafe working conditions. Then the company really started coming after me. . . and people on my line will agree to that! After being harassed by my supervisor all the time, they finally fired me.

Personnel said it had to do with lying on my job application – which I did not do and will prove at my hearing. This company thinks that they have us so scared that they can pull anything. But we know we have rights. I've filed a grievance with the union and gotten an extension on my hearings. Besides that, other people showed support and let Stewart Warner know that we watch out for each other by calling my supervisor and the personnel office. It was great. Nobody thinks the company should have the right to run around firing employees out of the blue for no good reason – so the people let them know it! I plan to get my job back soon!

Stewart's may think that by getting rid of me (or any person who stands up to them) that the trouble will stop. But they are way off. The trouble happens because our jobs are so lousy, the conditions are so bad, and we're made to feel like little kids with no control over the situation and no rights. So long as our jobs are like this we'll continue to fight. We have a real solid group and it is growing. People are starting to get over being prejudiced and gossipy because little by little we see that our biggest defense against these deadening jobs is to stick together solidly.

Dare to struggle – Dare to win!
All Power to the People!

– a sister from Stewart Warner –

THE CLASS POINT OF VIEW

This is an excerpt from Pages From A Worker's Life, by William Z. Foster, International Publishers.

The I.W.W. free speech fight in Spokane, Washington, in 1909, was just over. It had been a very bitter struggle, with hundreds of arrests and beatings, but it ended victoriously for the workers. Now our problem was to find jobs for those just released from jail. Harry Black had a suggestion.

Black had been through the fight and had conducted himself well. He was a Western floating worker, a ranch-hand, miner, logger, construction worker. Alive and energetic, he voiced the typical I.W.W. bitter hatred of the bosses.

Black's idea was this: A contractor had offered him some sewer digging on a sub-contracting basis. Black proposed that he take the sub-contract, which involved no financial outlay for him, and that we wobblies be his workers. As a good I.W.W., Black said he opposed exploitation of the workers, so he would make the sewer-digging job a "home" for us. He, himself, would be satisfied to make merely regular day wages. Nobody but wobblies would be given work.

We had nothing to lose, so we took it on. For a few days everything went fine. Black worked in the ditch with us; and we joked, smoked and talked of the revolution as we dug. This easy-going arrangement did not slow the job; if anything, we did more than a usual day's work.

Soon, however, Black began to change. He became impatient with our talk; he complained that it interfered with the work; he spent more and more time on the top, "looking down our collars" as we worked. In short, he started to "rawhide" us.

Black was fast taking on the typical employer's psychology. He was one of those who are quick to seek personal emancipation by climbing out of their class over the shoulders of their fellow workers. It is the type that gives birth to spies, strike-breakers and corrupt labor leaders. Lurking beneath his thin veneer of working-class revolutionary phrases had lain the seed of petty-bourgeois greed, planted there by his capitalist environment. Black was giving just one more illustration of the truth of Marx's great principle that the way people get their living determines their social outlook.

Black's progress capitalist-wards was swift. In the third week of our job he fired one of our gang for not doing enough work. Then he gave up eating dinner with us, and no more did he join in our revolutionary talk. He even complained against the union and hired two non-wobblies.

Meanwhile, we were boiling higher and higher with resentment. Things came to an open break when he took on the non-unionists. We struck. Whereupon Black denounced the union like any capitalist and called in the police to help smash our strike. He did not succeed, however, as the I.W.W. in Spokane was strong and militant. The general contractor, who had urgent need of the work, stepped in, eliminated the sub-contractor, Black, and reinstated the discharged workers. Then we returned to work. Thus ended Black's experiment at combining I.W.W.-ism and capitalism.

But Black had had a taste of exploiting workers. The capitalist tiger instinct in him was roused. No more working for wages, no more revolution, no more I.W.W. for him. He was now out to "get his". Years later I ran across him, a non-union contractor in that haven of open-shoppers, Los Angeles. The capitalist class had recruited another bitter labor hater.

GREAT LAKES SAILORS UNITE

Recently there have been reports of racial clashes on various ships like the Kitty Hawk and the Constellation and other naval installations like Camp Allan around the world. These "racial incidents" are a result of racial discrimination in the Navy and racist attitudes of white lifers and sailors. When white and black EM (enlisted men) fight each other, they have no time to get together to fight their real enemy–the naval establishment. So while the brass denounce these "incidents", they do nothing to resolve them–like eliminating racism in the Navy.

In order to promote the unity that's necessary for sailors to change the Navy into a decent thing, it's the sailors–black and white–who have to get together to solve the problems. Racism affects all of us and it's really a struggle to change our attitudes and build real unity among the sailors. But it is possible.

The reason I say, it is possible, is because when I was stationed at Great Lakes Naval Training Station (in North Chicago, Ill.) we built a real strong unified group of sailors–black and white. It was called Movement for a Democratic Military (MDM). We stuck together to fight against the brass for all of our rights, and this organization still exists today at Great Lakes. It wasn't easy, but we did and it's happening today on a small scale on ships and bases all around the world.

Maybe if I explain how we did it then other people can pick up on some of the ideas to help build some togetherness wherever they are stationed.

In the summer of 1970, over 150 sailors, about half black and white, met on the beach on base. This meeting was called by MDM to help break down racial barriers and build some unity between black and white sailors. Most of us were skeptical of the whole thing, but individual sailors began rapping about their experience with racism. Several sailors from the South got up and really rapped heavy about their experiences with racism.

I told how I have never seen a black person until I was 18. Then how I had a fight with five black sailors and got my ass kicked. I never reported this and just looked for the brothers who did it so we could try to figure out how to stop this insanity from happening. After months I finally found the guys who did it and we sat down and rapped about how racism really messes over all of our heads. We never became ace partners, but we did understand each other better.

Both black and white sailors told stories like this. It was a real far out, honest meeting. This meeting was a first step towards unity on the base. A real unity, with the sailors united against the brass. And this unity paid off, too.

Like one time the brass was locking up some black Waves, so the black sailors on base went over to demand that they be released. This started a small riot with the pigs vamping on the blacks. But when the white brothers in MDM heard about this, they caused trouble on the other side of the base. This divided the security force. This was real unity. Lots of things like that on a smaller scale happened where white and black sailors stood together against lifer harrassment and won!

I was in the Navy 4½ years and even though I didn't see resistance like the beach meeting every day, there was always some level that people were getting together to try to make their life as a prisoner of the Navy a little more bearable. The idiocy and incompentence of the Navy's leadership forces enlisted men to unite just as a matter of survival. We shouldn't let racism keep us apart. Today I am still helping sailors get together by working with MDM at Great Lakes. If anyone is interested in getting together with other sailors to fight for sailors rights they should contact us at:

Ruchell Magee

SO LONG AS YOU KEEP ON FIGHTING THERE'S A CHANCE

Ruchell Magee is a 34 year old black man who's been in prison half his life. He's a small man with an infectious grin, a deep sense of justice, and a spirit that refuses to be broken.

After getting out of Angola Prison in Louisiana, Ruchell went west to Los Angeles. In an argument over a $10 marijuana deal, one of the men involved went to the police and said he had been held in his car against his will. Ruchell was charged with kidnapping. He was convicted in a typical frame up with witnesses lying to get out of trouble and Ruchell not even being allowed to speak. He protested and two years later, through his own legal efforts, won a new trial. But at the new trial a court-appointed lawyer first pleaded him not guiltyby reason of insanity then pleaded him guilty – all over Ruchell's loud and clear objections which the judge called court-room outbursts. That was in 1965; and since then there has only been San Quentin Prison.

During the years, Ruchell has become a brilliant jailhouse lawyer. He has helped many other prisoners file writs and win cases. At the same time he has been fighting his own convictions, with thousands and thousands of pages of motions. The courts have not responded.

On August 7th, 1970, Jonathan Jackson, the 17 year old brother of George Jackson, walked armed into a courtroom in Marin County, seeking to free prisoners involved in a trial. Prisoners James McClain, William Christmas, and Ruchell Magee joined the action. They took hostages, including Judge Harold Haley and District Attorney Gary Thomas. Guards opened fire on the van they were using to leave. McClain, Christmas, and Jonathan Jackson were killed. Judge Haley was also killed. Ruchell Magee was seriously wounded, and D.A. Thomas was paralyzed for life.

Ruchell was charged with the murder of the judge, as well as kidnap and conspiracy. The Marin courthouse actions were the same ones for which Angela Davis was charged and then acquitted

Ruchell was in a different place than Angela. His background and style were different; he had been so long in prison, and there was no doubt that he had taken part in the courthouse actions. He called the actions a justified slave rebellion and said that a person who is held in illegal confinement, in slavery, has both a human right and a duty to rebel against slavery. He even cited U.S. court cases to prove the point, including one decision that went in favor of a rebellion on a Spanish slave ship led by an African named Cinque. He adopted Cinque as part of his own name.

That was Ruchells first argument: that he had been held as a slave and had a right to rebel, especially after years of peaceful petition. He could also prove that he had been confined illegally, but to do so he had to insist on his right to conduct his own defense.

It's supposed to be a consitutional right that you can defend yourself in court, but like lots of other rights these days, it's been stomped on. In California the courts have stripped the right away, ruling that you have a right to an attorney and that that fulfills your right to self-defense – even if the attorney is appointed by the judge.

Still Ruchell fought to defend himself. During pre-trial hearings one judge agreed and he was "granted" the right to self-defense. But then the trial was moved to San Francisco and a new judge, Morton Colvin, denied him the right, with the prosecution talking about I.Q. tests and the whole thing – insulting the humanity and intelligence of Ruchell. He had no other choice but to protest and he did again and again. Much of the trial was conducted with Ruchell in a holding cell outside of the court, as almost every day he would speak out against the illegality of the proceedings . . . after filing motions against them.

Even as it was, the prosecution didn't do very well. Towards the end of the trial former Attorney General Ramsey Clark came to help with the defense. Clark had spoken to Ruchell in prison several times and he had made a study of the right to rebel. He made several fine arguments about racism in the U.S. and slavery. He told the jury that Ruchell did that day what he had to do to maintain his human dignity, that he acted out of the uncontrollable human impulse for freedom.

The D.A. who was paralyzed, Harry Thomas, was the main witness who said that Ruchell had shot the judge. Several other hostages disputed this and added that Ruchell had been very careful of their welfare and had been responsible for the decision not to take a small child into the van. The defense contended that Judge Haley was killed by police bullets, and they presented medical testimony to prove it.

So the jury went out. And out. And out. Several times they reported back that they were deadlocked and unable to agree on any charges. Judge Colvin insisted that they should and sent them back. But at the end of eight days even the judge realized it had to stop. It turned out that the jury had voted 11 to 1 to find him not guilty of the murder charges, with the holdout being a white realtor. But the jury had voted 11 to 1 to convict on the kidnap charge. The holdout was an elderly black postal clerk named Moses Shepherd. He refused from the beginning to convict on anything. After the trial Moses Shepherd told reporters some of the jurors wanted to convict Ruchell Magee of something, no matter what the evidence. He was asked why he held out and he said, "I didn't think he was guilty. The prosecutor never proved his case. That's simple."

It is not yet known whether the state will attempt to retry Ruchell Magee. The hung jury was not a defeat, but it was by no means the victory Ruchell has been seeking so long. He remains in prison. He has plans to get a hearing on his previous convictions and if he is able to prove the illegality of these it is not impossible that he be released. But that will be a long struggle, and there are many authorities in California who do not want him freed. In a statement to the people as the trial ended, Ruchell asked for continued support, thanked all those who had helped him, and said he is now etter prepared to deal with the battles of the future. In an interview several years ago he summed up his philosophy when he said, "I believe that as long as you keep fighting the outcome is still up in the air; as long as you keep fighting there's a chance you may win, and one person can make the difference if the cause is just."

STEELWORKERS' CONTRACT: NO POWER TO THE WORKERS

On March 29, I.W. Abel, president of the United Steelworkers, announced that the union surrendered its right to strike. All unresolved contract issues will be submitted to binding arbitration. This affects 350,000 steelworkers and will last until at least 1977. Since steelworkers don't have the right to ratify their contract, rank and file approval of their plan isn't necessary.

The only power that workers have against the companies is to strike and stop production. This new contract says in effect "All power to the corporations, no power to the workers". Everything that's important is in the hands of the arbitrator. Steelworkers, under this agreement, have no strength, no power.

This agreement shows the partnership between steel industry bosses and union leadership. They worked together on this project in order to take advantage of the workers. They made a movie, "Where's Joe", which was shown all over the country. The basic point of the film is that if steelworkers strike, foreign steel gets a foothold in this country and U.S. steelworkers suffer. The reason foreign steel gets into this country, though, is because it is cheaper. If U.S. corporations charged less for their steel and made less profits they could compete with foreign steel.

The reason steelworkers are losing jobs is because of speedup – not foreign competition. Production in the first half of 1972 was four million tons greater than in the first half of 1971, with 40,000 fewer steelworkers.

This new agreement virtually guarantees that all steelworkers will work harder, that conditions in the mills will deteriorate, that U.S. steel corporations will increase their profits and that more steelworkers will be out of jobs. And there's nothing the union will do about it.

It is the responsibility of steelworkers and all workers to organize themselves not only against the corporations, but also against sell–out labor leaders like I.W. Abel. It is only when we fight for ourselves, as a unified militant force, can we protect our rights and improve the lives of working people in this country.

Letters to Rising Up Angry

Lane Tech

Dear Rising Up Angry,

Brothers and sisters at Lane have been getting together and the scene's been mellow. The main problem is that the school authorities and the police are going out of their way to hassle us.

On Thursday, April 12, some narcs came sneeking around the Jack-in-the-Box on Western Avenue and grabbed about 6 people. They were searched and then taken for a ride in the squad cars. No crimes had been committed and no one was under arrest.

The cops wanted these 6 students to go to other schools and set people up for dope busts. No one wanted to have anything to do with it and finally the cops had to release all 6 students because there was no evidence to hold them.

Incidents like this happen all the time because the school officials and the police want to create an atmosphere where there is no trust among the people. If there's a lot of spies, the students would never know who to trust.

The school officials add to the paranoia by hassling us every chance they get. From detentions to locker searches to busts – the motive is the same. They want students to be robots who blindly carry out all orders and follow all rules.

We don't want to live our lives never trusting anyone and always fearing that we're doing something wrong. The people will build unity and trust and no one will stop us – not the boss on the job, the cop on the beat, the principal in the school or the sergeant in the army. We'll rebel, revolt, and fight for what's right – at Jack-in-the-Box and everywhere.

ALL POWER TO THE PEOPLE!

Hamlin Park

Dear RUA,

I was walking through Hamlin Park with a brother and sister from the Young Deuces when 2 squad cars pulled up. The cops told us to leave the park.

We didn't want any trouble, so we started to leave. As we were leaving, I stopped for a second to fix my shoe. Next thing I knew, the cops had me up against the car and pig Donahue was searching me and asking me questions.

The other brothers who were at the park were made to line up against the fence and stand spread eagle on their tiptoes. The cops made us all stand there for quite a while.

Then they brought me to the police station and took me in the back room. I was told to put my arms up in the air and they kept telling me to put them higher. I told them that I couldn't put them up any higher because one of my arms is disabled from Vietnam. He said to keep them up anyway.

All this time and I was never told why I was busted. Finally, they told me that the charge was – you guessed it – disorderly.

I wasn't disorderly, I wasn't even bothering anyone. Donahue is a pig and this incident is another example of why something has to be done to "stop the pigs".

(I'm writing this from the 19th District jail. Never say die!)

ALL POWER TO THE PEOPLE!

Blackhawk and Bosworth

DEAR RUA,

A lot of us from around Bosworth and Blackhawk (Division and Ashland) hang out in this brother's backyard. On Friday nights there's about 20 or 30 people. Sure enough, there will be five squad cars of cops to see what we're up to. Usually the cops bust some of us and charge us with disorderly or mob action. A lot of times when something happens in the neighborhood, like a burglary, they come by and accuse us of doing it, take down our names, and sometimes take us down to the station. Even if something happens three blocks away, the pigs come over to hassle us about it. When we're standing on the street corner, they take down our names and tell us to go away, or else they get out of the car with their guns drawn or holding their clubs and push us up against a wall. There's one pig (an undercover pig) who's especially bad and people should watch out for him: That's Keiser–he's beaten people up, he's taken away club sweaters, and he's talked real nasty to a lot of us.

We haven't been bothering anybody and we don't want to be harassed by the Wood Street pigs anymore!

Teddy, Ralph, Sonny, Joe, Pee Wee, Buddy, Debbie, Cathy and Cindy

Zion H.S.

Dear RUA,

INDOOR SCHOOL DETENTION is what the teachers and school officials call it, but the students call it the TANK, because it's just like a jail.

The Tank is a room about 20' by 12' with 9 desks. Students are sent there as a punishment for anything they do that the dean doesn't like. When in the Tank, students must sit quietly in the chair and do homework for 5 hours. They are not allowed to speak during the entire 5 hours and they are not allowed to leave the room except for one bathroom break after 4 hours of being stuck in the Tank. The bathroom break is timed and the student has 4 minutes to be back in the Tank. Anyone who is a little late or caught talking can be suspended depending on the mood of the teacher in charge.

The teachers threaten the students with the Tank and quite often falsely accuse students of being high on drugs. The dean will then send a note to parents telling them that you were high on drugs at school.

We go to school to learn, not to be threatened and closed up for 5 hours. They are trying to train us instead of teach us; the only thing that we're learning is what it's like to be in prison.

POWER TO THE STUDENTS!

These are some of the people from Riis Park. A pig named Gillio from the Austin police district is trying to run them out of the park. But the brothers and sisters will not be moved.

The Imperial Gangsters from Armitage, Spaulding & Drake, at Kelvyn Park H. S.

GOLDBLATT'S SELLS RATS

The Goldblatt's on 47th & Ashland must not have been making enough profits on their white mice sales, so they sent 2 men out to an old apartment building and caught some rats. They sold them in the pet department under the name of "colosso mice" and charged $2.79 a piece for them. Business was booming and profits were high, but someone got wise and figured out what they were buying and that those rats might have rabies and bite their kids, or just get loose and start a family - and who wants to pay for something they've got too much of already for free.

So, Goldblatt's got rid of them....at that store. They gave them to the 26th Street store and called them "colosso rats", changed the price to $1.79, and put them in cages with white mice to try to fool people.

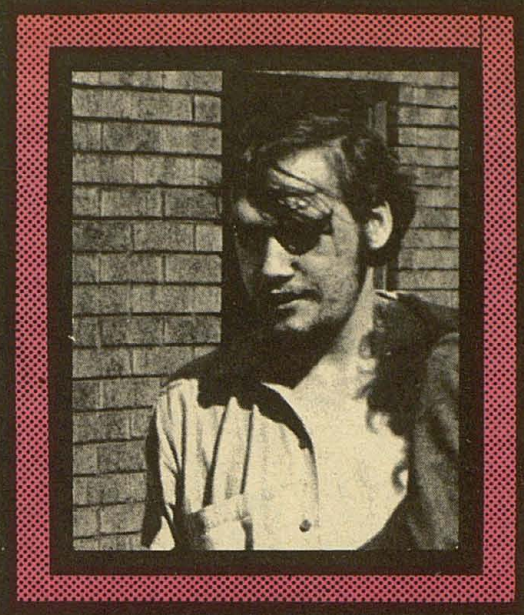
We get ripped off enough by paying twice (at least) what things are worth, but when our health is put in danger too, just so they could make 100% profit - that's 100% pig! Don't buy your family pet at Goldblatt's!

SOUTH-WEST SUBURBS

The people from the Southwest side suburbs (which includes Bridgeview, Summit, Argo, Justice, Burbank, Willow Springs, Oak Lawn, and Palos Hills) have been keeping the unity and keeping the pigs on the run. Many of our brothers were busted because there were no places to party (there are very few now). They had to party on 72nd and Octavia and were approached by a couple of pigs named Samosaka and Fraile. (Driveways are their favorite places to bust people). The majority of our brothers have court dates coming up. Only the unity of our people has kept us from being busted more - it's the only way.

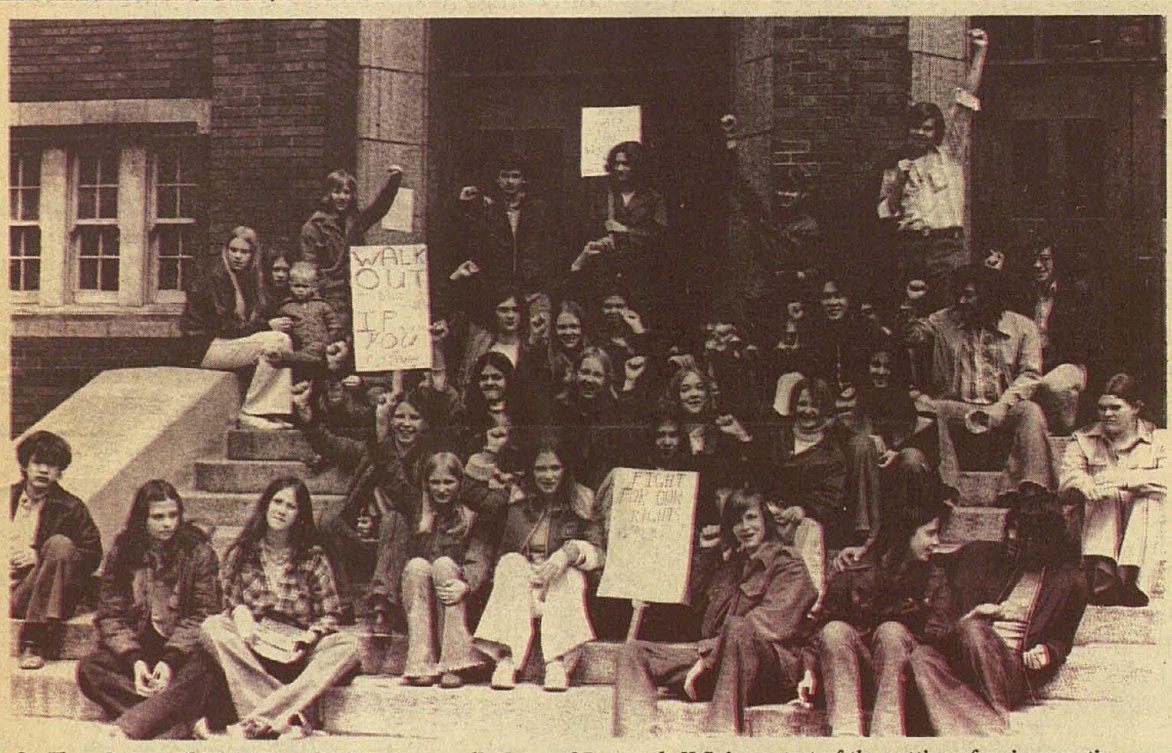
ALL POWER TO THE PEOPLE!

Rising Up Angry regrets the death of Mike Vic, a brother from Albany Park who on the night of April 11, 1973, overdosed and died on downers.



Downers are around in most neighborhoods. Plenty of them too. And it's easy to see why. For one, the giant corporations that produce downers can only account for half of them which are sold to pharceutical companies. The other half wind up in the neighborhoods. Another reason is certain corrupt doctors who see quantities of downers to dealers from different neighborhoods. Thirdly, the police never seem to stop the doctors who sell the downers and government agencies let corporations, like Eli Lilly, manufacture more downers than they sell to pharmacies.

Mike Vic's death is the fault of the system. Deaths like these, where people don't live to see the age of 21 because of killer drugs, must be stopped.



On Thursday, April 26th, about 200 students walked out of Roosevelt H.S. in protest of the cutting of spring vacation. The police came and split people up. As a result, 175 people were suspended. It was a really good walkout but there should have been more of us and it should have been more organized.

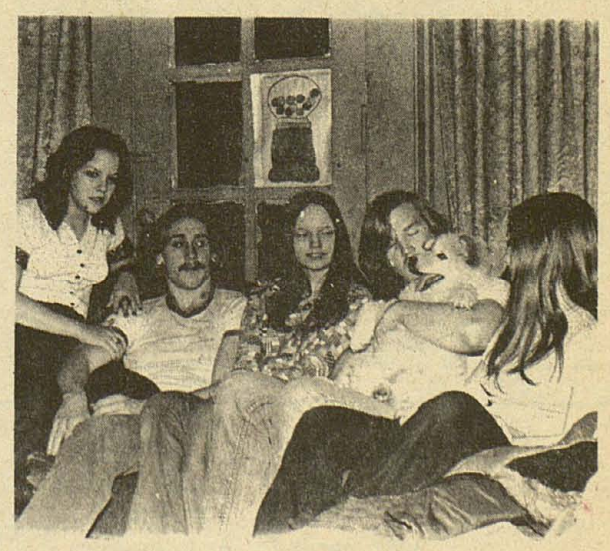
These students walked out of Kelly H. S.

Students from Lakeview H. S. also walked out to protest vacations being cut.

ROYALS, ACES & DEUCES

These are the Aces, Deuces & Royals - the picture last issue was only of the Royals.

ALBANY PARK



The pigs busted into Danny's crib without a warrant and ransacked the place and then raided two others looking for one of his friends. Who ever gave them the right to come into our homes anytime they want to? We all feel that the police should be made to serve and protect the people, not just the rich politicians and businessmen!

COMMUNITY CONTROL OF THE POLICE!

KNOW YOUR PRESIDENT!!

HEY! IT'S GOOD TO SEE YOU! WHATS BEEN HAPPENING WITH YOU? THIS "WATERGATE" STUFF STARTED ME THINKING. MY OLD MAN VOTED FOR NIXON IN '60 AND I FIGURED HE WAS RIGHT. BUT LAST WEEK I WENT DOWN TO THE LIBRARY AND CHECKED IN SOME OLD NEWSPAPERS..

WHEN OUR PRESIDENT WAS A YOUNG BOY, HE WALKED SEVERAL MILES TO SCHOOL EACH DAY - NOT BECAUSE HE HAD TO OR BECAUSE HE WANTED TO KEEP IN SHAPE - BUT BECAUSE HE THOUGHT THE KIDS ON THE BUS SMELLED BAD...

THOSE KIDS WILL BE SORRY - I'LL FIX THEM - WHEN I GROW UP I'LL BE A POLICEMAN AND I'LL SHOOT... NO, I WILL PRESIDENT AND FIX THEM GOOD..

IN 1952, WHEN DICK WAS VICE-PRESIDENT, HE GOT CAUGHT WITH A LARGE, SECRET "SLUSH-FUND": A NICE NAME FOR BRIBES AND POLITICAL PAYOFFS. SO HE WENT ON NATIONAL T.V TO TRY TO LIE HIS WAY OUT OF IT WITH HIS FAMOUS "CHECKER SPEECH". IT WAS ALL LIES....

DADDY - YOU'RE CHOKING CHECKERS

FRIENS, YOU MUST BELIEVE ME. I NEVER TOOK ANY GIFTS FROM ANY-BODY, EXCEPT FOR ONE. THIS LITTLE DOG THAT "TRISH" FELL IN LOVE WITH SO I JUST COULDN'T HIDE - I MEAN GIVE IT BACK - I MEAN REFUSE.... COME ON - YOU'RE SUPPOSED TO FEEL SORRY FOR ME.

DICK HAS AN EXCELLENT RECORD FOR LOSING, BUT EVEN THIS DOESN'T MATCH HIS RECORD FOR BEING A BAD LOSER. HE RAN FOR PRESIDENT IN AMERICA. IN '60 AND LOST, THEN HE RAN FOR GOVERNOR OF CALIFORNIA IN '62 AND LOST. AFTER THIS HE HELD A PRESS CONFERENCE AT WHICH HE BLAMED THE NEWSMEN FOR HIS LOSS.

YOU BULLIES HAVE HAD A LOT OF FUN AT MY EXPENCE AND YOU MADE ME LOSE. BUT YOU WON'T HAVE ME TO KICK AROUND LIKE A FOOT-BALL, CAUSE THIS IS MY LAST PRESS CONFERENCE

IN 1968 WHEN DICK WAS RUNNING FOR PRESIDENT, HIS MOTHER, A QUAKER, AND VERY MORAL WOMAN, EXPRESSED DOUBTS WHETHER HER SON DICK WAS FIT FOR THE POSITION...

IF I EVER GET MY HAND ON HER I'LL.... I'VE GOT A BETTER IDEA.. I'LL CUT OLD AGE BENEFITS

BUT THEN DICK GOT A BRIGHT IDEA. THE 1968 ELECTION WAS COMING UP, SO HE HIRED A GIANT MADISON AVENUE ADVERTISING AGENCY. THESE VERY SKILLED ARTISTS AND WRITERS RE-MODLED DICK DOWN TO HIS TOE NAILS. THE WAY HE TALKED, THE WAY HE SMILED, THE WAY HE SAT, THE WAY HE COMBED HIS HAIR. THEY SOLD HIM JUST LIKE A CAN OF "THANK YOU" PUDDING OR UNDER-ARM DEODERANT. WITH THIS AND 100's OF VERY RICH FRIENDS, NIXON GOT OVER ON ONE HALF OF AMERICA..

COME ON YOU GUYS. LOOSEN MY JAW - THIS SMILE IS KILLING ME ——

AFTER DICKY ORDERER U.S. TROOPS TO INVADE CAMBODIA IN 1970, HE WAS ASKED WHAT HE THOUGHT OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLES' OUTRAGE. HE ANSWERED, THAT HE DIDN'T CARE ABOUT IT BECAUSE HE WAS TOO BUSY WATCHING TELEVISION.

LET ME MAKE ONE THING PERFECTLY CLEAR — I WILL INVADE ANYONE THAT MESSES WITH MY VIEWING....

THOUGH NIXON HAS ALWAYS TALKED UP LAW+ORDER, HE PALS AROUND AND DOES FAVORS FOR KNOWN CRIME SYNDICATE LEADERS. ONE OF HIS MOST FREQUENT COMPANIONS IS HIS NEXT DOOR NEIGHBOR AND FLORIDA MOBSTER, "BEBE" REBOZO

LISTEN, DICK YOU AND ME IS FRIENDS — IF YOU EVER NEED ANY-THING, CALL ME.. I GOT AN ARMY OF TRIGGER-MEN

I LIKE YOU TOO, BEBE - AND CALL ME IF YOU NEED A FAVOR CAUSE I'VE GOT THE REAL ARMY

NIXON HAS ALWAYS PUT ON AIRS ABOUT BEING MORAL AND BEING RELIGIOUS AND GOOD. HE ALWAYS WAS SAYING THAT HE WAS A QUAKER. QUAKERS ARE GOOD PEOPLE WITH ALOT OF LOVE IN THEIR HEARTS FOR THEIR FELLOW MEN. THE HEAD OF THE QUAKER CHURCH IN AMERICA, APPALLED BY PRESIDENT NIXON'S VICIOUSNESS, WROTE HIM A LETTER ASKING HIM TO QUIT TELLING PEOPLE HE WAS A QUAKER, AND THAT QUAKERS DIDN'T WANT HIM IN THEIR CHURCHES ANY MORE...

I DON'T CARE IF GOD'S ON MY SIDE OR NOT. I'VE GOT IBM, RCA, GM, LOCKHEED, DOW, GEN ERAL MOT

I HOPE YOU LIKED THE DRAWINGS - THESE WERE JUST A FEW OF THE FACTS I FOUND OUT. IF DIS MADE YOU MAD CHECK OUT MY PA

IMPEACH NIXON

IF I EVER GET MY HANDS ON THAT...
